Junior Web Developer

WHO AM I?

Junior developer with a diverse, 5+ year background in foreign languages, education, and cultural studies. After self-studying through online courses and discovering how much web development aligns with my own lifelong learner mindset, penchant for creative problem solving and experimentation, I decided to fully devote myself to becoming a full-stack web developer. While living abroad for extended periods of time, I have also developed an adeptness for quickly adapting to new situations, processing information, and effectively communicating with individuals from all over the world.
